INFORMED DELIVERY FROM USPS

The United States Postal Service (USPS) now offers a new feature allowing USPS customers to see what is being delivered to their mailbox before it is delivered. This new feature is called “Informed Delivery” and is a free service.

USPS customers may sign up at the post office or online:
<https://informedelivery.usps.com>

Once signed up, you will receive an email notification each morning with scanned images of the mail to be delivered to your mailbox that day. USPS created this service in hopes of reducing the risk of a number of issues, including mail theft.

Personally, I have signed up for the “Informed Delivery” service and have found it to be very useful. Now, when I am anticipating the delivery of certain bills, checks, or debit cards, I am made aware that morning of what is being delivered to my mailbox. When I arrive home, I compare what was sent in the “Informed Delivery” message to what I actually received. If, for some reason, something doesn’t match or I am missing an item, I can contact the USPS and notify them. I also have security cameras pointing at my mailbox, so if I suspect a mail theft took place, I review the images and send them to my local police department.

Take advantage of this free service! And remember, if you suspect packages or mail may have been stolen from your property, please contact Castle Rock Police Department or fill out an online police report!

YEAR-TO-DATE COMPARISON: MAY (2015-2017)

During the month of May, Detective Brian Finley successfully completed forensic interview training at the nationally recognized CornerHouse in Minnesota. The week long course is designed to teach methods for conducting children interviews and provide an understanding of how children of different ages express themselves.

The training provided both classroom and practical experience. It concluded with testing and certification as a Forensic Interviewer. This training and certification greatly enhances the abilities of the Castle Rock Police Department to respond to victims of child abuse, child sexual assault or children who are witnesses to serious crimes.

VICTIMS ASSISTANCE (VA) UNIT

VA UNIT STATISTICS MAY (2015-2017)

In May, we bid a fond farewell to our Victim Assistance Coordinator, Carole Malezija. Her work in Castle Rock began in 1997 with the creation of a full-time victim assistance program for our police department. During her tenure, she was recognized as Advocate of the Year in the public sector by the Colorado Organization for Victim Assistance (COVA) and was also involved in advocacy for several high profile incidents including the Columbine High School shooting and the Aurora Theater shooting. Her hard work and dedication to crime victims greatly benefited the citizens of Castle Rock over the past 20 years.

We wish Carole all the best as she ventures forward into what we know will be a busy retirement!

Target Thanks - Officer Hanners

Last year, I along with several other Target Assets Protection team members partnered with your department on the Heroes and Helpers and National Night Out events...it was really an honor to be able to help you guys out in that way and to be able to sit in on a great evening.

Throughout the course of these two events the partnership and professionalism exhibited by Special Operations Officer Hanners, in particular, was exceptional. He displayed the highest level of commitment and collaboration while representing your organization to the highest standards and eagerly shared his expertise with our team members, he has truly contributed to the sense of community we all have here.

Our Assets Protection team wishes to extend our appreciation and gratitude for the dedication of this professional [Ofc. Hanners], and say thank you for the work your agency does every day to make our community a safer place to live and work.
