 The City hotel is undergoing a thorough repairing and cleaning since the fire a short time ago and will be newly furnished throughout. The office has been made larger and many other improvements made.
 Mrs. M. Fuller & Son have rented the hotel and will run a first-class hotel. They are now open for business though the work of repairing and papering is still in progress.

On Monday afternoon John Bear was driving a steer through town when the animal became so vicious that it ran at every one who happened to be on the street. Mr. Bear called to every one he saw to get out of the way. Mr. Nydegger came very near being caught, but got inside the door just in time to save himself. A little further on, T. S. Harris was walking along the street between the saloon and butcher shop and being a little dull of hearing did not understand Mr. Bear's warning until the mad beast was within a few feet of him, when he attempted to run, but it was too late. The steer struck him just back of the shoulder. One horn passed through the flesh striking and probably fracturing one of his ribs. He is suffering great pain and at this time it is impossible to tell what the result may be.

—The boarders of the Castle Rock hotel were aroused from their peaceful slumbers by a strange and unusual noise in the rear yard of the hotel. At first a half dozen men who rushed to the window half dazed reported that the source of the deep tones which continued to vibrate upon the morning breeze was involved in mystery. In round and mellifluous tones came the words: "Good Morning, Lord Mayor of Castle Rock." Then following: "Good Morning, Mayor." Just as a number of anxious auditors were in the act of descending to investigate they saw the Mayor elect crawling out of a hog-head, where he had been familiarizing himself with his new title before venturing upon the street.
