AGENDA TOPICS

PAC 2021-011

Painting Positivity: Planning Phase Two

The subgroups continued planning discussions for the Painting Positivity Campaign, focusing specifically on defining the call for entries' details for phase two featuring street art activation. Proposed ideas included art on a stick/portable sculptures, sidewalk and window decals, wrapping traffic signal boxes with vinyl art and creating outdoor panels of photo mosaics featuring many images placed together to render a symbol of hope, such as Castle Rock's star. After discussion and a round of votes, it was recommended to draft an open-ended call to obtain lots of professional or amateur photography for use in a variety of art activation strategies. The photos could then be used within several of the previously described ideas (decals, box wraps, large posters, etc.). The subgroup assigned the following next steps to continue progress: Nick Lucey and Colin Shreffler would work to develop a site page with a unique URL; Maia Aman and Jen Perry would work together to draft a Call for Entries for the Public Art Commission's review and approval; Cherie Monteferrante would research pricing the art activation strategies; and Yontae Johnson would work on researching list of potential business partners to engage with future participation.

ADJOURN

The meeting adjourned at approximately 5:48 p.m.
