Title | Transparencies in Time:
I have been exhibited in different venues with a work that's titled: Transparencies in Time: Cuahpohualli embedded in ethnopoetic language poetry. I seek to expand this work into a comprehensive exhibit in a gallery and/or installation in 3D public art sculptures (i.e., three simultaneous monumental works that expand into multiple levels of perception and/or dimensions). In this the sculptures came from dreams, it's a refraction of our ancestors so you see a mirror in yourself.

Title End of an Age

As we see the old time cowboy lifestyle slowly coming to an end we can relate this to the reign of the Native Americans and the buffalo. Whether or not you can connect to the cowboy, Indian or buffalo we all have chapters in our book of our lives that come to an end. The moccasins, bow and quiver signify the end of the Native Americans rule and reign. The buffalo skull indicates the end of the rule of the monarch of the prairie. Now the cowboy takes off his boots and hangs his spurs on the fence post beside them. Time marches on and we all have things in our lives we have to hang up and move on. The original poem mounted at the base of the sculpture reflects how hard change is for most of us.

 I'll ride free no more forever
 I heard the old cowboy say
 Like those who have gone before me
 I'll hang up my spurs today
 'Cause times they are a changin'
 They're fencing off the range
 And I reckon I'm too old
 Or maybe too stubborn to change
 The longhorns replaced by the Hereford
 The old chuck wagon parked for good
 Settin' lonely out there on the prairie
 Just weathered and rotten old wood
 Like the Indian and the buffalo
 Forever no more will they roam
 These mountains and prairies and badlands
 That once they called their home
 And I reckon it's easy to see
 That we've come to the end of an age
 This chapter in life's book is over
 But it's sure hard to turn the next page

Title The Rolling Stones
Description This sculpture was a spontaneous creation. The idea simply ?
 "just came to me", was Joe's quote. Joe likes to use natural objects in our sculptures when possible. We both are inspired by creation and nature. Using left over materials and repurposed steel/items is also another favorite of ours.
 The idea of "caging" the stones in rebar and forming a design was a challenge that Joe wanted to figure out. Being challenged with use of materials, balance and capturing an esthetic artistic piece is what he enjoys doing.
 Once the sculpture was created, it was clear to me that it would be called The Rolling Stones. When I look at the sculpture, I see a very powerful wave in the ocean gathering up the stones and pushing them into a cresting wave. Of course the rocks are no longer rolling as they are now "caged". That's where ones imagination comes into play!

Title JACOB'S LADDER
Description Jacob's ladder was created with scrap that was found in our local scrapyard. Most of the sculptures that we create are from materials that have been discarded and considered of no use. The enclosed spiral "ladder" is painted a bright safety red. This sculpture is so interesting to observe from many different angles, especially when you look through the "ladder" from the bottom of the sculpture toward the sky. The contrasting gray base color helps to make the focus be on the red spiral. The biblical story of Jacob and the dream he had of the ladder ascending to heaven was inspiration for the naming of this sculpture.

Title QUONDAM
Description The word quondam, Latin meaning "at one time" or "formerly". This sculpture has been given this name because it was one of our former sculptures that was created in 2014 and has been re-built, re-designed and painted with very "retro" colors. At New Adventure Sculptures, we continue to try to use/repurpose materials that might otherwise be discarded. This includes re-using or updating some of our former sculptures to hopefully breathe new life into them.
 You will notice that there are three different shades of red used on the sculpture. Again, the color selection had a purpose, by displaying how well three very different shades of red compliment each other. The contrast of the gray concrete ring and the colorful base creates an appealing visual effect.

Dimensions 6 x 3 x 2

The intent of the sculpture is to open the "window" for viewers to define their own interpretation and create their own story from the collections of many framed windows. The sculpture's windows interact with the landscape. By looking at the landscape, the installation is as diversified as the communities it visits. Title "The Last Sea Turtle"

Description "The Last Sea Turtle" is an upcycled piece made entirely of repurposed plastic bottle caps and galvanized wire. I set out to make a statement piece but wanted to use materials that would otherwise be sent to the landfill. Plastic pollution is an extensive issue facing the world today. Using 1,000+ plastic bottle caps, I was able to craft an animal often affected by plastic pollution, the sea turtle. The title stems from the fact that if humans do not change our behavior to coincide with the natural world, the "last" sea turtle will be one made of plastic. Sea turtles often mistake plastic bags for food as they look like jellyfish, a common food source for the animal. In one of the submission photos, a train of plastic bags can be added to trail out of the mouth of the sculpture, as a reference to this unfortunate fact. The question could be asked, "Why should Colorado, a central state, care about plastic pollution in the ocean?" Plastic pollution is everywhere, not just the ocean. The oceans are a food source for over one-third of the world's population and supply much of the oxygen we breathe. Therefore, the ocean is a source of livelihood for humans everywhere, even if you've never seen it. While this may not be the most "beautiful" piece, it contains a message that transcends its appearance. This piece is sure to evoke important conversations regarding human consumption and our relationship with the natural world.

What equipment and supplies are needed to install this piece? Please include any unusual basing and/or anchoring requirements for this piece. This piece could be installed multiple ways. If hanging such as in the submission photos, a strong base would be needed to suspend the wire holding the sculpture at the desired height. The piece also would look good laying on a flat surface. I think the sculpture looks great suspended from wire but would need to be attached to the ground as well as wind is a factor.

Title Sidewinder
Description Sidewinder is a large abstract serpent like Corten Steel sculpture. It stands about 8' 9" tall, is about 5' 6" wide and is about 3' 6" deep at the base. The base of the sculpture is about 52" x 42" at its widest points and is shaped like an irregular diamond. I'll attach a photo of the bottom of the sculpture. It will be sanded smooth. The sculpture will weigh about 200lb. My sculpture is an abstract one, so people can read into it what they like. It can be seen as a monument to increasingly scarce wild plant and animal life. It could also be looked at through the lens of religion and superstition for the many different meanings that cultures have attributed to the serpent. It could also be open to new and unique interpretations that have not yet been thought of. I think that that's the best thing about abstract art.

There are four bolt down locations arranged around the edge of the base of the sculpture. They are big enough for up to 5/8th inch bolts to secure the sculpture. No special equipment is needed to install. It can be manhandled into place without too much trouble.

Occasional cleanings with toilet cleaner is what I tend to do. It's mostly to get the bird droppings off. Anything that you prefer to use should be fine.
